Consent to the processing of personal data for teaching and learning purposes (recording), if the lecturer excludes the video and audio transmission of participant-related data by default

The lecturer selects a preset that prevents the image or sound of participants in the course offered in the form of video conferences from being transmitted to other participants. However, the lecturer will record the course, i.e. he/she will record sound and images of participants if and to the extent that the transmission of images and sound is permitted.

By activating the microphone or camera for video transmission in your system, you agree that recordings may be made of the video lectures and video lessons offered as part of the course and that these recordings may be published on the Moodle teaching platform within the circle of participants of the course (and only this circle). You are aware of the fact that your words and pictures will also be recorded and made available to the participants. "Participants" are the students who have registered for this event on the Moodle learning platform.

Note: Your consent is voluntary. Of course, participants who have not agreed to the recording by appropriate settings can also participate in the lecture and ask questions, for example. Please ask these questions in the video conferencing tool as a private chat message to the lecturer(s). Your question will then be repeated and answered by the lecturer without mentioning your name. Only the lecturer will receive the private chat message to the lecturer(s). It will be saved by the lecturer as an aid to the lecturer (as well as the "public" chat messages sent to all participants). Only the lecturer can access saved chats. The file of saved chat messages will not be distributed.

You can partially or completely withdraw the consent granted by the corresponding settings at any time with effect for the future by switching the microphone on your computer to "mute" and/or by terminating the video transmission of your camera. You will of course continue to participate in the course, which is offered as a video lecture or video consultation hour. Only your sound and/or image will no longer be transmitted to other participants and thus no longer to the lecturer.
